

Can I hold current prices for deferred bike orders?

We will uphold the price of a bike or frame current at the time of an advance order being made but only if customers have paid the non-refundable administration charge and the full balance of the bike (although we must point out that if we take full payment via debit/credit card for a purchase in advance, it is a legal requirement that the goods must be delivered to the billing address at which the card is registered and may not be collected). Payment by BACS is of course acceptable if the bike is to be collected. Again the administration fee will be deducted if the bike is completed within one year of placing the order.
